

Solar Equity Rebate Pilot Program

Denver Solar Co-op

Making money-saving energy improvements like going solar can be daunting.

What if the process of going solar was made easier and you could save money by going solar together with your neighbors? This buying in bulk is the Denver Solar Co-op, which is free to join with no obligation to go solar. You can simply find out what going solar means for you. Yet, we know this still isn't enough for many families in need.

The Solar Equity Rebate Pilot Program helps address the significant barriers of accessibility for low-to-moderate income households. Those who meet income eligibility requirements can qualify for a $3,000 solar and $2,000 battery storage rebate. Residents interested in additional cost savings can be connected to non-profit programs that can support income-qualified energy efficiency with the Denver Office of Nonprofit Engagement (D-ONE).

Solar Equity Rebates

through the Denver Solar Co-op for income-qualified residents

$3,000 solar rebate
$2,000 battery rebate

Off the cost of your total project. Funding is available on a first-come, first-served basis.

Solar Equity Hardship Fund

through the Denver Solar Co-op for income-qualified residents

Hardship funding is available

Supports unforeseen circumstances that could increase the cost of your solar project like roof repairs. Funding is available on a first-come, first-served basis.

Energy Efficiency Support Services

through the Denver Office of Nonprofit Engagement for income-qualified residents

FREE energy efficiency assessments and upgrades

Energy Outreach Colorado provides free energy efficiency upgrades, bill payment assistance, heating system repair/replacement, and more.

The Energy Resource Center offers free energy efficiency evaluations and upgrades such as insulation, HVAC, hot water heaters, lighting, refrigerators, air sealing, solar, and more.

Groundwork Denver provides energy efficiency services, weatherization upgrades, and resident education.

Mile High Youth Corps offers free energy assessments and upgrades for LED lighting, programmable thermostats, ultra-high efficiency toilets, and more.

Bill payment assistance

Education

Learn more about the Denver Solar Co-op and Solar Equity Rebate Pilot Program at solarunitedneighbors.org/Denver

Learn more about D-ONE's energy efficiency programs at denvergov.org/energyefficiency

